bury and plans are matured for extensive improvements at the iron foundry. though the latter building will not be erected until next year. The new building is built primarily for the manufacture of the automatic scales which have been developed so successfully the past year. It will be a three story solid brick structure with a basement, with the ground dimensions about 90 by 50. In one corner a pit is now built and this part of the building is to be the foundation of a model elevator where grain can be handled in exactly the same manner as in a big elevator. Work will be rapidly pushed on the building this summer and it will be ready for occupancy in the early fall. The improvements at the foundry are quite extensive, and when completed will result in great and the old ones torn down, The new shed will be built high enough and strong enough so that a louded train can be run direct to the cupolus, where
